Cut and give each group a Role

Immigration Lawyer

“As an immigration attorney, I have clients with DACA. It will affect them immensely. They will lose their jobs and have to stop their educations. They will once again face the constant terror of imminent deportation. For five years they have made plans and built families and now everything they have done or have thought of doing is in danger. It is heartbreaking. For me, as a lawyer, I’m trying to help clients plan what other avenues for deportation relief are available, though for some people there is nothing or almost nothing.”

-Dara Gell, immigration lawyer

Dreamer

“I am enrolled in the program, and have been since 2013. The possibility of being deported is going to rise incredibly. Finding a job that pays minimum wage will be difficult. Everything’s going to feel a bit more hopeless.”

-F, DACA recipient

Journalist

“Trump should do what he should have done his first day in office. He should declare the Obama-administration guidance null and void.”

Andrew C. McCarthy in National Review

Adversary of DACA

“The program is illegal, overbroad, and the first step toward a full amnesty. These people are illegals and they’re stealing jobs of honest working Americans. They need to go back to their own countries.” Anonymous

Parent of Dreamer

“It’s true that I brought my daughter here illegally ten years ago. I risked both our lives while crossing the border, but I took the risk to save her life. If we had stayed in the village we would have been killed by gangs. What mother would not risk everything to save the life of her child?” Anonymous
